Map

As a postgrad student, I'm not new to the concept of career planning but needed help in organising my thoughts and investigating the options open to me. I used some of the suggested resources available to me to outline my options and it has helped focus my efforts around where I want to go - and how I can get there. I've used the on-line mind mapping tools to help me work out what my skills are and then map them to specific roles or opportunities. This has also helped me outline where I have gaps in my development, and plan ways to work on these.

- Miro: A visual workspace for innovation

Want to share your story?

If you think you have a story to tell, please have a go and write, film or audio record your journey under the same structure: map, experience, reflect and share.
